

The Dirt

Digging up the truth to keep your hands clean!

According to a well-placed anonymous source in the Diamond Legion, changes are coming to our beloved police and military. New uniforms are expected to bring a pop of color with uniforms in various, bright colors. This will bring quite a spark in our otherwise drab protectors.

What well known member of a noble house known for its affinity for horses was seen leaving the down-right seedy dwarven brothel, The Down and Dirty Dwarf? Was he taking a walk on the wild side or did he have business with someone with a less than reputable member of Amthydorian society?

According to the rumor mill, the walls of the city will be changing. One source states the walls between the rest of Amthydor and the Nobles' District is going to be added to making it fifty feet tall. This is just another example of the nobles of Amthydor losing touch with the common citizen.

How many hours does it take to eat a meal? Recently, a well-known member of the Society of Entertainers and Performers spent almost four hours "eating lunch" at the Jade Palace and then went straight to the Dragon Flagon for a three hour "snack". She certainly can pack it away and keep her girly figure or was she busy packing something else away that wasn't food?

Is it just us or have there been more ambassadors outside of their district lately? How many laws have they broken but not had to pay any penalty due to diplomatic immunity? Their parties make a weekend at the Folly House look tame. Last week there was an incident at the Gilded Cage that required ten Diamond Watch members to break it up with 0 arrests of ambassadors and 6 arrests of Amthydorian citizens. Is this justice?
